

THE INTERVIEW

Created by Jellyman Education

OPENING

Most people think interviews are about proving technical skill.

But here's the reality: interviews are more like speed dating. The company is asking, "Do we want this person around long term?"

what you said, but they will never forget
how you made them
feel.” – Maya Angelou

THE REAL PURPOSE OF INTERVIEWS

Employers already know you can do the job — your resume and portfolio got you in the room.

Now they want to know:

- Will you fit into the team?
- Can we trust you under pressure?
- Do we enjoy talking to you?

We can teach new skills. But we can't teach you not to be a douche! - Jed

HOW TO APPROACH INTERVIEW QUESTIONS

When they ask about skills, it's not just to test knowledge. It's to see how you think and whether you're open to growth.

TIPS:

- Don't just answer — explain your thought process.
- Share stories that connect skills to real outcomes.
- Show curiosity by asking them questions back.

WHAT EMPLOYERS REALLY LOOK FOR

- Can we imagine this person working alongside us every day?
- Do they listen as well as they talk?
- Do they bring energy instead of draining it?

You don't need to be perfect. You need to be someone they want to work with and grow alongside.

CLOSING

An interview isn't about showing you're flawless. It's about showing you're real, teachable, and a great fit
